PLAYGROUP

WHERE THE WORLD OPENS UP!

Many of us seek playgroups to broaden our social networks. They are great for both the parents (who get to chat over a cuppa of choice) and kids (who get to make some mess, try a new activity or craft and run around with friends).

At DVBC, the world opens up: for making new friendships, getting lost in stories, giggling over funny songs, having great conversations, playing in the cubby and sandpit, on the swings and the slide. Then there are the many bikes, trikes and cars the kids get to ride around a mini track. And even on a rainy day, there are books, blocks and dress ups and many little corners for play.

Here's what Kristy and Lyric have to say:

What lead you to join the playgroup at DVBC?

I had tried a few playgroups that just weren't suitable and they soon fizzled out. I'd heard about DVBC through positive word-of-mouth and it was a major drawcard to know the session was structured with a room leader. As soon as I entered the building and then the room I knew it was for us as it had a great feel to it.

How long have you been enjoying playgroup?

We've been here about 18 months and have since joined the church. We love it!

What do you like most about the DVBC playgroup?

The size of the room and the array of activities for all the kids both inside and out. And the fact that everyone is so friendly and inclusive.

"I knew it was for us immediately, as it had a great feel to it."
